

Education

for Children and Adolescents with Medical Conditions

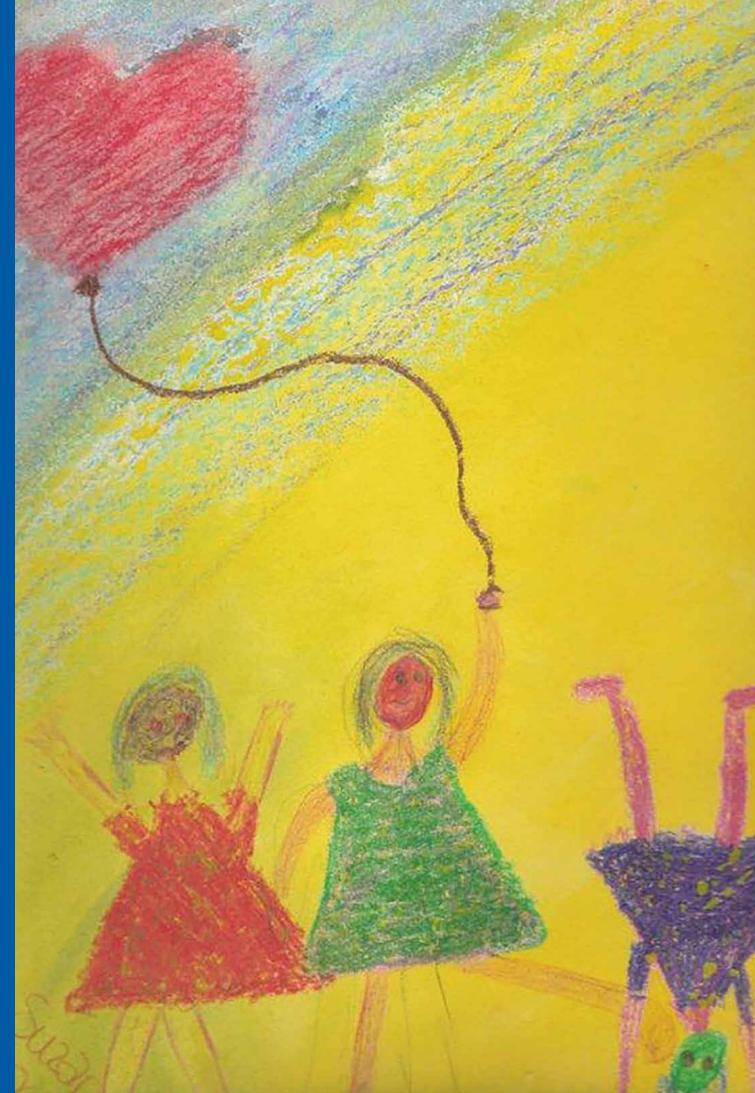

Continuity in Education
www.hospitalteachers.eu

HOPE is the international network of teachers of children and adolescents with medical conditions. Our aims are (excerpts):

- To promote the right to education for children with medical conditions according to their individual needs in a suitable environment;
- To work towards the implementation of the European Charter for 'The Rights and Educational Needs of Sick Children and Adolescents' (Barcelona, May 2000);
- To promote the development of teaching in hospitals, and in general the education of children with medical conditions;
- To promote and encourage research in all aspects of hospital teaching and education of students with medical conditions and to publicise examples of good practice.

We maintain a website, collaborate in workshops, issue newsletters, organise national and international events. If you work in the field of hospital teaching, please reflect if and how you might be able to get involved.

A small first step is simply becoming a HOPE member.

HOPE Charter

Charter of the Rights and Educational Needs of Sick Children and Adolescents (excerpts):

- Every sick child and adolescent has the right to education in hospital or at home;
- The hospital school creates a community of children and adolescents, and normalises their daily life. Education in hospital may be organised as class, group or individual teaching, including at the bedside;
- The aim of teaching sick children and adolescents is the continuation of their education, enabling them to maintain their role as pupils;
- The lesson plan encompasses more than formal curriculum learning. It includes subjects related to special needs arising from illness and hospitalisation;
- The integrity of the child or adolescent shall be respected.
